FAVOR CHANGE IN CONSTITUTION

MEMBERS OF GREENCASTLE AND DEPAUW WOMEN FRANCHISE LEAGUES HEAR ADDRESSES ON IMPORTANT QUESTION OF PRESENT CAMPAIGN—SPEAKERS DECLARE THAT WOMEN WILL CORRECT MANY EVILS IF ALLOWED TO VOTE.

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED

"Indiana's Need for a New Constitution" was the subject of an address delivered in the assembly room of the court house this morning by Mrs. Bryant White, of Indianapolis, a state speaker of the Indiana Women's Franchise League. Mrs. White was brought to Greencastle by the Greencastle and DePauw branches of the Franchise League. An enthusiastic audience greeted Mrs. White and the other speakers on the program and a favorable impression was made in the cause of equal suffrage.

"There is no important question before the people of Indiana in the coming election than that of whether or not the state should have a new constitution," said Mrs. White in opening her address. "And in this connection it is well to state that there is great importance attached to the matter of being well acquainted with the plan of the election. The direct question will be put to the voters on the ballots and a majority of affirmative votes must be cast before a convention can be called. A failure to vote will mean that you have cast a negative vote."

The speaker then explained at some length the plan that will be followed in calling and conducting the constitutional convention in case the voters of the state ask for a new constitution.

Mrs. White claimed that the statement that Indiana needs a new constitution is not a partisan assumption but that all political parties have declared for it. The Democrats have admitted this, she said, by Governor Marshall's constitution of 1911, by twenty-four amendments proposed in 1913 and by the bill calling for the vote of the people on the constitutional convention at the election of 1914. The other political parties, Mrs. White pointed out, have declared for the reform in their state constitutions.

Among the principal reasons given by the speaker why the state should have a new constitution were the following: (1) the present constitution is too long and not sufficiently flexible, (2) the present constitution has been outgrown by years of history, (3) our amendment provision is almost prohibitive, (4) constitutional changes should come from the people and not from the legislatures and (5) certain reforms are needed in the economic life of our people.

It was in regard to the latter reason that Mrs. White devoted most of her time. She declared that the questions of child labor, white slavery, the liquor traffic and the like never will be settled until the mothers, wives and daughters of the state and country have a chance to vote. The proposed new constitution, she said, probably would give them this privilege.

Following the address by Mrs. White, Miss Katherine Kingsley, physical director of women in the university, urged women students in the audience to realize fully their duty in pushing the cause of women's suffrage. She told of the advances of other states in this matter and declared that Indiana should not be the last to take up with the project.

Miss Julia Sullivan, as chairman of the resolutions committee, reported the decision of the committee following the short talk by Miss Kingsley. The resolution submitted follows:

"Resolved, That we, the Woman's Franchise League of Indiana, do hereby solicit the voters of the state to vote 'Yes' on the proposition to call a convention for the purpose of framing a new constitution for this commonwealth.

"We make this request because we believe in equal human rights, and because we stand for progress and justice."

The meeting was presided over by Miss Selma Schneider, of the DePauw branch of the Women's Franchise League, while Mrs. H. B. Gough, of the Greencastle league introduced Mrs. White and made a few remarks appropriate to the occasion.

TRADE-AT-HOME SLOGAN OF MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION

At a called meeting of the board of directors of the Indiana Retail Merchants' Association, held in Indianapolis last Wednesday, an unanimous resolution was passed to make Thursday, October 29th, Retailers day in the whole state of Indiana.

On this day, in every town where there is an organization of retail merchants and in the towns where there are enough merchants but no organization, all the merchants will meet to discuss the plans for the biggest Trade-at-Home campaign ever held in any state. The steps in this campaign are now being perfected and will be launched at these meetings.

The campaign is to be state-wide and is to embrace every citizen of the state; man, woman and child, irrespective of calling.

Trade-at-Home Dinner.

The climax of the first stage of the campaign will be a Trade-at-Home Dinner in every town in the state at 6:30 o'clock on Tuesday, November 17th.

This dinner is for the purpose of showing the people of Indiana that there is no need of sending money away from home for necessities or even luxuries. The menu will be composed entirely of Indiana products; the people at the dinners will be urged to wear as nearly as possible only Indiana made apparel.

It is estimated that these dinners can be held in at least a hundred towns and cities in the state and that fully fifty thousand people will attend. The attendance will not be restricted, all will be urged to attend; the business man from the farm and the business man from the city; the wives of the business men from farm and city will be there with the children; the employer and employee; all joined together in one jubilee, proving to themselves and the state that Indiana can take care of her citizens, that the Indiana citizens realize that they have a duty to perform in their state in keeping Indiana made money in Indiana and that they are willing to fulfill this duty.

Continued Campaign.

From the evening of the state-wide Indiana Trade-At Home Dinner, the newspaper, show-card, street-car card, moving-picture slide and every other available advertising medium will be used to keep constantly before the people of the state the buy-at-home idea.

The movement growing over the country at this time to "keep American money in America" can be aided right here in Indiana by keeping "Indiana made money in Indiana."

NEW ATTRACTIONS FOR CELEBRATION

CORN SHOW GIVEN EACH YEAR UNDER DIRECTION OF CENTRAL NATIONAL BANK ARRANGED AS PART OF BIG HALLOWEEN AND FALL FESTIVAL ENTERTAINMENT—ALSO MAY BE AN APPLE SHOW BY GREENCASTLE ORCHARD CO.

WILL INCREASE CROWD

The annual corn show given by the Central National Bank of this city, which always attracts the attention of the Putnam County farmers will be held October 31st, and is included as one of the big attractions of the big fall festival and hallowe'en entertainment. An apple show given by the Greencastle Orchard company in all probability will be another feature of the day.

Each year the Central National Bank offers prizes for the best display of corn and many farmers compete for first place. The added attraction will be one of the big drawing cards for the farmers, who will be entertained all day, for they are all interested in the corn raising industry.

Mr. Wetz, manager of the Greencastle Orchard company, has considered an apple show down town for several weeks and it is probable that he will grasp this opportunity to display his various specimens of fruit. When questioned regarding the possibility of having the apple show, Mr. Wetz stated that he was considering the arrangements for the show, but had made no definite decision.

PLANS READY FOR STATE'S APPROVAL

BOARD IN CHARGE OF PROPOSED NEW DOMESTIC SCIENCE NIGHT SCHOOL NOW IS IN COMMUNICATION WITH STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION—PLANS MUST BE APPROVED BEFORE AID CAN BE SECURED IN BEARING EXPENSES.

NO DIFFICULTY ANTICIPATED

Preliminary plans for the establishment of the proposed domestic science night school for the benefit of Greencastle ladies were discussed at a meeting of the board in charge of the school held in the office of Superintendent of Schools H. A. Henderson Friday afternoon. Nothing definite was given out concerning the meeting with the exception of the statement that the board now is ready to submit its plans to the state department of education for its approval. Superintendent Henderson already is in communication with Mr. Book, assistant state superintendent of public instruction who has charge of vocational education in the state and who has the authority to grant any city an amount of money equal to two-thirds of the expense of conducting such schools. It is believed that Mr. Book will be in Greencastle early next week to go over the local plans and to decide whether the state will give aid to the project here. Since the methods employed in other cities in getting state aid have been followed here, no difficulty is anticipated in this matter by local people.

To date more than fifty Greencastle ladies have stated to members of the board that they desire to become enrolled in the new school. This number is greatly in excess of what the board expected so soon after the first plans were announced. Since only eighty ladies can be accommodated in the four classes of the night school it is feared that there will be a greater number desirous of receiving instruction than there will be room for. It is understood that those who hand their names in to the board first will be the ones to receive advantage of the new school.

ELECTION COMMISSIONERS ARE NAMED BY CHAIRMEN

Mort Marshall, Progressive, and Thomas Sage, Democrat, have been named by the county chairmen of the Progressive and Democratic County Committees to serve with Arthur J. Hamrick, county clerk, as members of the county election commission, which will have in charge the printing of the county ballots.

The job this year will be a big one as there will be four sets of ballots to print. Beside the regular county ballot there is the township ballots and special ballots for deciding the questions of whether Indiana shall appropriate 2 million dollars for a Centennial Memorial and to decide whether a constitutional convention shall be called for the year 1915.

M. L. DAGGY ADDRESSES GREAT MEETING AT NEW MAYSVILLE.

Maynard Lee Daggy addressed a great Democratic meeting at the New Maysville school house in Jackson township on Friday evening. Mr. Daggy was accompanied to New Maysville by Andrew Durham, William Sutherland and Fred Thomas.

Allen Eggers, one of Jackson townships young Democrats, was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker of the evening. Mr. Daggy, who is an orator and thinker of exceptional ability, spoke most entertainingly for more than an hour. The school house was filled to capacity and every one who heard Mr. Daggy were hearty in their praise of his ability as a campaign orator. Mr. Daggy will speak at Cloverdale this afternoon and at Filmore this evening.

Horace and Charles Pitts were called to Indianapolis today on account of the serious illness of their brother-in-law, Robert Frazier, who is an Indianapolis hospital. Mr. Frazier formerly lived here and was employed at the cabinet factory.

How an apparition followed a victim into the desert and "delivered the goods."

After walking three hundred and fifty miles without finding a town which pleased him, Oakley left the railroad track and turned out into the tawny desert.

He walked ten or a dozen miles farther, straight across the shimmering sand, lashed by the thousand whips of the sun, and then stopped to think the matter over.

Looking backward over the path he had followed, he was pleased to see that even the faint, bluish, perpendicular lines that had marked the location of the telegraph poles were no longer visible. There was nothing in sight to remind him of human beings.

The sun was still high and the heat, which had made the morning almost unendurable, was yet oppressive.

After satisfying himself that he was, indeed, beyond the probable reach of human eyes, Oakley stood for a few minutes, meditating.

"I don't really believe that they have any idea where I am, and I doubt if they are still trying to find me," he said. "But I can't stay in a town two days without getting nervous. Every policeman I see appears to have difficulty in keeping his hands off from me, and I just have to dig. I feel safer out in the open, where there isn't anything but animals—where everything skulls, the same as me."

He sat down in a partially shaded niche in one of the rain-gashed buttes, and fanned himself with his frayed hat.

"Somebody says a guilty conscience doeth us up like a patent medicine," he mused. "Wonder why consciences aren't more appropriately distributed. Some men, like me, who have outgrown the mind of one, have enough to bother four men, and some who need one badly are turned loose without any."

"One would suppose that when a fellow gets to the point where he can kill another man his conscience would give him little trouble."

"What was that?"
He sprang up suddenly.
"Oh, I see. Go it, you long-eared collection of legs," he said, with relief, as a jack rabbit hastened toward a line of trees across the valley.

Oakley followed slowly along the path taken by the rabbit. He knew the trees were greasewoods, and thought there must be a stream near. Upon approaching nearer he thought he saw a man standing motionless under a tree. Therefore he turned quickly and slunk back along the ragged edge of a dry dune.

There was something suspicious, he told himself, in the fact that a man was doing nothing, or anything, in such a wilderness, and he could not afford to take any chances. He crept to the top of a butte and cautiously took a position where he could watch the row of greasewoods.

Lying flat on his stomach under the hot sun was trying work. He thought of something he had learned at school—something about earning bread by the sweat of his brow.

"Seems to me I've paid for about five good loaves already," he remarked, after half an hour had passed. "But where are they? I never did believe half of those copy-book fairy tales."

He shifted to one side, and continued his reverie.

"Now, I can't see why that fellow wants to stand there in the hot sun like an imitation of Lot's wife. 'Tain't natural, nor even sensible. Oh! You are coming over here, are you? All right, mister. My latch string's hanging out, and there's only one of you, so receiving callers is not going to be at all tedious."

Oakley laid an old revolver in a depression in the sand.

"You aren't much like the gun the horse thief stole from me," he said, addressing it meditatively. "It ain't at all likely you'd shoot if I was to hitch wild horses to your trigger, but as far as luck goes you're a sight more impressive than none."

Several times the man straggling across the gleaming sand stopped and shaded his eyes with his hand, scanning the horizon in all directions, but always completing the search with a glance at the butte where Oakley lay sweltering.

Oakley watched him curiously. There was something familiar about him. Was it his manner of walking? Oakley could not determine. Suddenly the man vanished from sight.

Oakley rubbed his eyes and stared out across the vibrating heat waves. No one was in sight. Absolutely no living thing could be seen anywhere. And yet Oakley could have sworn that a moment before a man was coming slowly toward him. He stood up and peered eagerly into the desert. The look of wonder on his face changed quickly to one of alarm. Ah! Now he had it. It had suddenly dawned upon him that the one he imagined he had seen was French. No one else walked like French.

And if that was French there was but one conclusion. Oakley said to himself. He was going insane. French he knew to be dead, for he had killed him. Therefore, French could not be walking over a desert. Oakley knew now that he was beginning to see visions, to conjure up vengeful shapes, and to grope in mental darkness.

Insanity—horrid, gibbering lunacy—had tracked him, self-driven from the companionship of men, far out into the wilderness. It had left the railroad track and the telegraph poles, even as he had done, and followed him. It would always follow him. Oakley realized it all at once. There was no escape. No desolate region far from the haunts of men was secure from this insidious, insatiable Nemesis. No spot, crowded to the utmost by other men, was inaccessible to this clammy monster of the brain. Yet Oakley shuddered at the thought of separation from his kind.

Picking up his revolver, he turned to descend the butte.

There before him stood French, grinning amiably.

The revolver fell to the ground, filling his muzzle with dirt. With a wild shriek Oakley dashed away. French put out a nimble foot and brought him to the ground, where he lay, stunned.

When Oakley regained consciousness French was sitting nearby, cross-legged, masticating tobacco.

Oakley sat up, and the apparition handed him a piece of the weed. Oakley took it and examined it carefully. It appeared to be genuine. Then he arose, and, walking up to the apparition, felt cautiously about the head and shoulders. The genuine "feel" was here also.

Oakley looked for a moment out over the sand toward the railroad track, shook his head doubtfully, and sat down.

"Lord, what a place!"
"Well, what's the matter with it?" asked French.

"Everything is so sort of confusing. I can't quite see clearly," replied Oakley.

French took from his pocket a roll of bills, and separating several from the roll, handed them to Oakley. "See any better now?" he queried.

Oakley thumped them over doubtfully, his mind still in a haze. After a pause he said slowly, "Well, yes, I think the dawn is gradually illuminating my darkened vision, and yet I can't—What is this money for?"

"That's your pay for killing me," responded French glibly, "and a recompense for the anguish of mind which much have been yours when considering your awful deed. You see, Oakley, old man, when you became so angry at me, back in our little home town, and attempted to put me where I could no longer arouse your indignation, you failed utterly—didn't even touch me with your bullet. When I fell, dazed by the bombardment, you evidently thought I was dead. Any way, you fled living, as I did, a bachelor on the edge of town, no one heard the shot and no one came to investigate. I happened to be out of money."

Oakley interrupted: "As usual."

"I saw a chance for a scheme," continued French. "My friend, the physician, came at the opportune time to see me, and with his assistance as the certifier of my death I passed from the knowledge of men, was duly and mournfully buried, and by unimaginable toil, together with the kindly aid of my beneficiary, succeeded in realizing upon some fraternal insurance that happened to be fully paid up."

"Then you—aren't dead?" said Oakley weakly.

"No, but pretty near it. What with following you through the infernal estate country that was ever left out doors for the wolves to howl in, in order to reimburse you for being the founder of my success in life, or death, as you might say, and also considering the hard labor I endured trying to establish my identity as a dead man, I am about dead."

"Oakley," he concluded wearily, "don't you ever try to accumulate wealth by the life insurance plan. Saw wood or tend sheep, but don't try to get it by dyin' falsely."

Oakley passed his hand over his forehead. When he drew it away it was covered with cold sweat, and thinking still of the apparition out on the hot sand, he declared solemnly that he never would.

After a few minutes of silence, he said, holding out his hand awkwardly, "I don't feel so angry at you as I did, partly because I've had a lesson that ain't down in the copy-books, and partly because it is an unusual experience for a man to have his victim pay him for tryin' to kill him. Let's shake."

"Perfectly agreeable," said French amiably.

"It was a good thing for me, financially, that you once took to murderin'. Let's go back to town and spend some of our money."

No Difference.

Miss Largefoot entered the boot shop and demanded a pair of shoes.

"Yes, madam," said the polite shop assistant. "What size can I get you?"

"Size three," was the dignified but emphatic response.

The assistant looked dubiously at her fairy (?) feet.

"Yes, madam. May I measure the size of your feet?"

"But I told you the size of my feet!" remarked the lady, somewhat crossly. "I said size three."

The shop assistant smiled sweetly. "We have three sizes of size three," said he. "Size three for a size-three foot; size three for a size-four foot; size three for a size-five foot."

Recreant Auditor.

"You went to sleep during your wife's speech."

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "Henrietta has been rehearsing that speech for a week. I told her I had better not come here. I knew something like this would happen if she couldn't shout 'Are you listening, London?' every now and then."

Special Notice To Taxpayers.

Many will question the amount of their taxes and ask concerning their personal property assessments and land appraisement. Mistakes will occur where the assessment of property and the extending and collecting of taxes are done by as many different officers.

The Treasurer and Auditor will cheerfully correct all mistakes for which they are responsible and the county assessor will explain the assessment of personal property and where possible adjust if in error.

Time is at hand for the paying of Fall taxes. Monday, November 2, is the last day on which taxes can be paid, without the penalty being attached. You soon will find yourself in the Treasurer's office in a great crowd, waiting to get to pay windows. Some will be in a hurry to make certain trains to get home. Why delay and cause yourself as well as the treasurer so much inconvenience?

If the second installment of taxes is not paid within the limit set by law, the taxes become due and delinquent and with penalty is extended by the Auditor and charged to the Treasurer. The state is interested in this extension and the Auditor and Treasurer are both personally liable for any penalties that might be refunded.

Under no circumstances can the Treasurer alter the duplicate. He can make no reduction in taxes and he can not refund money once paid in. Errors must be corrected through the Auditor's office.

As the Treasurer can not know the location of each person's property, tax payers should designate the property on which they wish to pay, and see that all property is included in their receipt. If they have land in more than one township or corporation, or desire to pay taxes on lands or lots not in their name, call the Treasurer's attention to the matter, carefully examine receipts, see if they describe all property (personal and real) and are otherwise correct before leaving the office, and if any errors are evident have them corrected at once.

The Tax Duplicate is not a transfer book and when, for any year, the Tax Duplicate is made with reference to the property on the first day of March said year the duplicate remains forever unchanged as to showing of property in whose books or prompt recording of deeds to the contrary notwithstanding.

Property will appear in same name of the payment of the second installment as for first. Assignees, Guardians, Administrators and others who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are earnestly requested to settle such taxes before the last few days, as it requires considerable time to make divisions and separate receipts. Thus avoid mistakes which might happen during the rush of the last few days of taxpaying.

"All property, both Real and Personal, shall be liable for the payment of all taxes, penalties, interest and cost charged to the owner thereof in such county, and no partial payment of any such taxes penalties, interest or costs shall discharge or release any part or portion of such property until the whole is paid, which lien shall in no wise be erected or destroyed by any sale or transfer of any such personal property, and shall attach on the first day of April annually for the taxes of such year."

—From Section 173, Acts 1881.

Special Notice.

All Ditch Taxes and Street Improvements must be called for separately.

The taxpayer often has personal property and poll assessed to him separately from his real estate especially when the land is in joint title, and accordingly must have a receipt therefor.

Delinquent taxes must be paid before the current tax.

The Treasurer will not be responsible for penalties and charges on delinquent taxes, resulting from omission of the person, paying such tax to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed.

Very Respectfully,

H. H. RUNYAN,
Treasurer Putnam County.

Would You Believe It?

People often accept statements with a sort of mental reservation as much as to say, "I am not convinced," which leads us to remark that there is nothing that will so thoroughly satisfy you of the excellence of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as a personal trial. Mrs. John Fishon, Peru, Ind., who used this remedy in her family for the past ten years, says of it, "I always give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to my children when sick with coughs or colds. I like it better than any other because they take it willingly and it is free from narcotics. It has never failed to give immediate relief." For sale by all dealers.

HOLDS NEEDLES AND COTTON

Useful Little Article That May Be Called Indispensable.

One of those useful little articles which are indispensable to the good housewife, and which would be sure to sell well at bazars, may be seen in the accompanying illustration. It consists of a book, needle-case, with covers in silk, satin, or brocade, adorned with cardboard and outlined with silk cord in some contrasting color. The word "Needles" is embroidered on the front, accompanied by corner-tionalized sprays of marigolds, but for these any other sort of flowers can be substituted. The name or initials of the owner might be embroidered if the case should be intended as a personal gift.

The loops of cord by which the case can be suspended on the wall or across the corner of a looking glass serve also to pass through the three reels of cotton which add greatly to the utility of the case, since cotton and needles are seldom required except in each other's company, and it often happens that the needles are so where to be seen, and vice versa. To prevent such a vexatious occurrence the contrivance which is here illustrated should prove most useful.

Anent Choosing a Wife.

Now comes the great question that is agitating social Washington. Eminent authors and ambitious newspapermen are contributing a symposium on "how to choose a wife." The old and yet ever new story of love and mating is always a popular theme for discussion.

The conclusion was reached in one corner of the press gallery, during a special discussion of this question, that "not one man out of 2,000 who marries actually chooses his wife." He thinks, it is true, that he is courting a girl, while, as a matter of fact it is a girl who is courting him. When he thinks he is claiming her for his own, as a matter of fact she is making him a captive for life. Of course, it was admitted, there was a sort of charm in such capacity, even for the most freedom-loving man; still no amount of discussion appeared to bring any real solution of the way a man chooses his wife, or the way a wife chooses a husband. In fact, this complicated question promises to take rank with the old query, "How old is Anna?" the true authorship of "Ain't it awful, Mabel?" or the unanswerable problem, "Who struck Billy Bateson?"

It has been suggested that if the government would take a hand in the solution, as it does in Japan, it might be possible to marry the right woman to the right man—train up a lady, fit her in every way for wifehood, then shoot her home with a dispatch authorizing her to marry some distinguished man, much in the same way that these affairs were managed—or mismanaged—in the days of the grand old Spartans—Joe Mitchell Chaplin, in the National Magazine for July.

Short-Sighted Mothers.

The housekeeper who has to manage carefully should set herself to learn this much of wisdom: to entrust to others the duties that they can perform, in order that she may exercise her greater skill upon others that they cannot accomplish.

Every one knows mothers—and very good mothers too—who seem to feel a kind of pride in bearing their own burdens and denying to others the discipline of taking a share of them.

Such are the women who boast that they never ask their husbands to fetch a book or carry a portmanteau; never trouble their children with little home duties, but bring them up to be free of any burden or knowledge of housework.

There is no credit due to a woman for this kind of independence. She is denying her family the opportunity for taking lessons in service and in practical housewifery.

Petition to Improve Public Highway.

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned Auditor of Putnam County, Indiana, that there has been filed in his office a petition by J. Polke Christie et al for the improvement of a certain highway in Floyd Township, said county, and that said petition is set for hearing before the Board of Commissioners of said county, on Monday, the 2nd day of November, 1914, the same being the first day of the November Term, 1914, of said board.

Which said petition is in the following words and figures, to-wit:

State of Indiana, Putnam County, SS:

To the Honorable Board of Commissioners of Putnam County, Indiana:

We, the undersigned, would respectfully represent that we are each freeholders and voters of Floyd Township, Putnam County, Indiana, and we petition and ask that you lay out and establish highways, and improve by grading, draining, bridging and macadamizing the same, and likewise improve the highways already laid out and established, such highways to be established and such already established being on and along the following described route, to-wit:

Begin at the point where the section line on the south side of section ten (10) in Township fifteen (15) north, range three (3) west intersects the center line of the Fillmore and New Maysville Road, said point being forty (40) rods, more or less east of the southwest corner of said section ten (10), thence east following the south line of said section ten, and the south line of section eleven, and the south line of section twelve, to the point where the said south line of section twelve (12) intersects the center line of an improved highway at the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of said section twelve (12) all in township fifteen (15) north, range three (3) west.

Said proposed highway begins and ends with an improved highway and is about two and seven-eighths (2 and 7/8) miles in length. Petitioners recommend that said highway be improved to a width of — feet and that said highway be paved with gravel. Petitioners further ask that such improvement be ordered, without holding an election.

Respectfully submitted, J. Polke Christie, Chas. Eggers, D. Eggers, Harvey Ader, John H. Poff, H. Leisure, Geo. L. Sutherland, Ambrose D. Cassidy, F. L. Ader, Edgar Wilson, Lewis J. Wilson, W. F. AMERICAN MOLES EQUAL EUROPEAN

U. S. Agricultural Department
Says New Industry in Preparation of Skins is Created.

TESTS SHOW FUR EXCELLENT
Government Report Tells How to Catch Them and Distinguish From Other Rodents.

Washington, D. C.—Owing to the gradually decreasing number of wild fur bearing animals, mole skins have found a ready market and are valuable commercially, according to Farmers' Bulletin 588, Department of Agriculture. It is significant to the lack of attention to small business matters, however, that American moleskins are not quoted or offered on the markets. All the skins used by American furriers are imported from Europe.

A small lot of American moleskins secured by the Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, was prepared and made up by an expert furrier who pronounced them in every respect equal or superior to European skins. It seems likely, therefore, that a new industry amounting to many thousands of dollars annually might be developed in this country.

In this country there are five recognized groups of true moles, two of which are confined to the Pacific Coast and the other three are distributed over the section east of the one hundredth meridian, extending from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. In the latter districts and in the greater part of Pennsylvania, New York and New England, the common mole occurs with the star-nosed mole and Brewer's mole.

The mole is so seldom seen, even by those who are familiar with its work, that it is often confused with other small creatures, particularly the shrew, the mole or meadow mouse, and the pocket gopher. However, it can be readily distinguished by its stout, short front limbs ending in broad, rounded hands with palms turned outward. It has a rather elongated body, close plushlike fur, a pointed snout and a short tail. Neither eyes nor ears are in evidence. It is a creature of strictly subterranean habits.

It is believed commonly that the mole works only at regular periods each day, but direct observation taken in late summer and fall fail to substantiate the theory. The moles are distasteful and seldom eaten by domestic cats and dogs, which have learned to catch them.

Hawks and owls take small toll from the mole tribe, as an examination of the stomach contents of over 2,000 of these birds disclosed the remains of but thirteen moles, five of which had been eaten by the red-tailed hawk, four by the red-shouldered hawk, and one each by the broad-winged hawk, the barred owl, the great gray owl, and the screech owl.

From an examination of the stomach contents of 200 moles taken in all months of the year it was found that earthworms and white grubs constitute the bulk of the food. Beetles and their larvae, spiders, centipedes, cocoons and puparia also form a part of the diet. Seeds coats of corn, wheat, oats and peanuts have been seldom found in stomachs of the moles.

Complaints of damage of depredations by moles are frequent and insistent. However, in very many cases a thorough investigation would show that the smaller rodents which follow the mole's runways are responsible for the damage to corn and other cultivated seed products that grow under ground.

When it is desirable to destroy the mole the trap will be found to be the most efficient means. So far all experiments undertaken with the object of finding an acceptable poison bait have given negative results, as the very nature of the animal's food makes it difficult to secure a satisfactory substitute of live worms, grubs and insects. Moreover, the little animal seems to be shrewd and quick to sense the danger in poisonous substances.

There are a number of excellent mole traps on the market, most of which will give good results if properly set. There are the harpoon, the scissor-jaw and the choker types. Harpoon traps are designed to impale the mole in the ground by spring-driven spikes.

The scissor-jaw traps are intended to be set astride the runway to grasp the mole firmly when he attempts to pass in either direction, and the choker trap has a set of wire loops that encircle the burrow when the trap is set. All three types are designed to be sprung by the same sort of mechanism, a trigger pan resting on a depressed portion of the mole ridge in such a way as to be lifted when the animal passes beneath.

HOODOO-BANISHING DOG

Little Terrier Rode on Trains Fifteen Years and There Were No Wrecks.

Albany, N. Y.—"Railroad Dick" of the Hudson Valley is dead. He was not president of the road, but no official ever carried heavier responsibilities than the little terrier. It is said that not a serious wreck has occurred on the trolley line since Dick took his first ride on a freighter fifteen years ago. Since then he has made at least a short trip every day. Dick got into a dispute with two Russian wolf hounds and there was no hope for him after the quarrel started. There were few dry eyes among the trainmen when they heard of Dick's death.

UNCEASING MISERY.

Some Greencastle Kidney Sufferers Get Little Rest or Comfort.

There is little sleep, little rest, little peace for many a sufferer from kidney trouble. Life is one continual round of pain. You can't rest at night when there's kidney backache. You suffer twinges and "stabs" of pain, annoying urinary disorders, lameness and nervousness. You can't be comfortable at work with darting pains and blinding dizzy spells. Neglect these ailments and serious troubles may follow. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of disorder. Thousands have testified to their merit. Greencastle readers will find convincing proof in the following testimony:

Mrs. W. M. Sears, South St., Danville, Ind., says: "For some time my kidneys troubled me. The least exposure caused pains in my loins and sides. I felt drowsy and had dizzy spells. On a friend's advice, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me at once. Others of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results."

In the World Of Women

WALNUT TREE PROFITS.

THE VALUABLE SIDE LINE OF A WISCONSIN WOMAN.

Makes a Good Many Dollars in the Winter from the Products of the Home Farm.

We have something like a hundred bearing walnut trees on our farm, from which I obtain a considerable income, writes a Wisconsin woman to the Ladies World. I gather the nuts and have them hauled to the corncrib, and with the help of my husband run them through the corn sheller. This removes the shucks, after which I spread them on a low roof to dry. These I sell to a city commission merchant for $1.50 a bushel.

I also sell nuts for planting. For $1 I send a four-pound package of shucked nuts by mail, or half a bushel, with shucks on, by freight. Several bushels I put in the shuck to sprout, together with a quantity of butternuts secured from another locality. In the spring I advertise sprouted nuts for planting at a nominal price. By mail, I send a dozen for 50 cents, and by express, at the buyer's expense, I send 50 for $1.

One city grocer gets his winter's supply of walnut meats from me. These are greatly prized for cakes, candies and so on, and I get 50 cents per pound for the broken meats, and 60 for the whole ones. I allow the nuts to dry only partially before cracking, as the meats come out much nicer than when fully dried. If they get too dry, I pour boiling water over them and allow them to stand over night before cracking. My 10-year-old son does much of the cracking, and I give him a small share of the profits. It does not take a long time to get a pound of meats, and I sell many dollars' worth.

MOTHER'S OPINION.

The Young Girl Who Does Not Heed It Usually Has a Rocky Road.

One of the great differences between this generation and others is the tendency of modern young women to think for themselves. Very often "mother's ideas" are voted old-fashioned by girls of the progressive type, and the girl of thirteen or fourteen sets her opinion up against mother's with the utmost assurance.

Now it is not impossible that the girl of thirteen may be right and her mother wrong, when there is a difference of opinion, but to say the least the probabilities are against it. Years bring wisdom. The horizon of maturity is much wider than that of youth. Elements enter into the formation of mother's opinion which have not as yet come into your experience.

The girl who is so sure she is right, and that mother is wrong, is a rather pathetic figure. One feels certain there are pitfalls before her. Self-confidence invites danger. The girl who scorns the advice of her elders has hard lessons to learn, and she is lucky if she learns them without disaster. Respect mother's opinion. If it does not coincide with yours, so much the worse for yours.

AUTHORITY FOR WOMEN.

Bible School Head Says They Should Not Be Placed Over Men.

"Women should never be in a position of authority over men," said Dr. Elmore Harris, president of the Toronto Bible Training School for Christian workers. When asked what he thought of the woman's position in the church, he said:

"I am opposed to woman's work in the church itself. She should never take the pulpit and proclaim the doctrine of Christianity, for I believe that such action is absolutely contrary to Scripture. Women should never be in a position of authority over men. Woman's work is in the missionary field. I am not opposed to women voting when they own property as it seems only right that they should have a chance to represent their interests at the ballot box, but I am most decidedly opposed to equal suffrage."

"Many of the leaders in the cause appear to be bright and intelligent women, but they evidently have no control over the rank and file of the believers in woman suffrage. It is wonderful how pugilistic these women become. Of course, the only explanation is that they become fanatical and imagine themselves martyrs. I have no use for mannish women, for they are a detriment rather than a benefit to womankind."

Big Hats Injuring Women.

The big hats women have been wearing tend to make them round-shouldered. Whether that condition is due to the weight of the hat or the difficulties women have in handling such headgear in bargain rushes, physicians do not say. They insist, however, big hats entail too great a strain on women, and they have forbidden many of their patients to wear them.

If the freshly baked loaves of bread are rubbed over with butter when they come from the oven and then wrapped in cloths the crust will be soft and rich.

Time is money, but it is seldom an even trade.

The first regular university service of the new year will be held in Meharry hall Sunday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. The sermon will be by President Grose while the university choir under the direction of Dean McCutchan, and Prof. Howard J. Barnum, violinist, will furnish special music. A large attendance of Greencastle people is desired.

Harry Mason, a graduate of the university with last year's class and now a member of the faculty of the Lafayette high school, is here to spend Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Rachel Mason, and sister, Miss Tona Mason, of south Jackson street. Mr. Mason went to Indianapolis this morning to get his trunk that has just arrived from Germany. The trunk was shipped about the first of August from Marburg, Germany, where Mr. Mason spent the summer.

Everybody welcome to Colored Suffrage meeting Crescent Rebekah carnival. Prominent visitors coming, Mesdames O'Kay, Welland Strong, Condly Weather, Jap A' Lack, Fine N. Dandy, Mack M. Tosh and Kodd Fish, Miss Lily White, Miss Cue, Miss Take, Miss Happ, Miss Roscoe Redd, Miss P. Ann Ola and George Washington, St. Anthony Webster Johnson, Mrs. Simon Pure, hostess for the occasion. —adv.

The Priscilla club will meet Monday afternoon with Mrs. Heber Ellis.

Rev. A. M. Hootman will preach at the old Antioch church, five miles southwest of Greencastle Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

The sewer ditching machine was moved today to the corner of Liberty and Jefferson streets and will proceed south on Jefferson street to the corner of Walnut street. The work of ditching on Gillespie street was completed Friday and little difficulty was experienced in the work. The sewer main was laid today and the portion of the system on that street is completed. The excavation on Jackson street is progressing slowly and as all the work is being done by hand only small portion of the sewer ditch was excavated by the machine. A force of 70 men is now employed by the construction company.

The annual state luncheon of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority was held today at the Claypool hotel in Indianapolis. The members of the sorority from all the schools of Indiana attended the meeting. A business meeting was held this morning and the luncheon was at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Those who went from this city were: Mrs. W. W. Tucker and daughter Miss Mary, Misses Lelia Claire Lammers, Florence Black, Mona Summers, Mayme Naylor, Rose Singleton, Hazel Vermilion, Mildred Morgan, Rowena Cosner and Jean Morris.

The Greencastle high school football team left this morning on the 8:25 Monon train for Gosport, where they met the high school aggregation of that town in a game this afternoon. Coach Talmadge Dillon took thirteen men to play in this afternoon's contest. The last practice was held on McKean field Friday afternoon and the team ran through a spirited signal practice. The locals expect to make the Owen county team play an excellent game in order to defeat them. Those who made the trip were: Handy, Strain, Hootman, Jordan, Taylor, Denman, Burks, Welch, Pitkin, Isles, Dunlavy and Bryan.

The construction of the sidewalks on south Indiana street has progressed nicely and the workmen are placing the concrete rapidly. The sidewalks on both sides of the street have been completed during the past two weeks, despite the unfavorable weather, and the men are now putting in the curbs and gutters. About 150 feet of the sidewalks were ruined several days ago by a heavy downpour of rain. The cement was fresh and the rain destroyed the smooth surface, and the walks had to be torn out. If the weather is favorable the work is expected to be completed in about two week's time.

A huge rock thrown by the force of a blast on west Columbia street where workmen are digging a trench for the sewer mains, struck the home of John Waes Friday afternoon and pierced the weather boarding and wall. The missile went nearly through the wall it being extricated from the plastering. Windows in several of houses along Columbia street have been shattered by the jar of the heavy blasts. The Foulkes Construction company is paying for all damages done in the sewer excavations and no complaints have been made.

The Central National Bank has on display in its banking house lobby, some specially interesting and instructive war maps. The maps were secured through James L. Randel, cashier of the bank, from the Government War Department and were prepared by the United States War College. The maps show very clearly the seat of the present great European war.

Dr. Demetrius Tillotson and Dr. C. C. North will go to Madison, Indiana, the first of the week to attend the meeting of the State Board of Charities, which will be in session there next week. Dr. Walter M. McGaughey, also may attend the meeting. The board of trustees of the State Penal Farm and the newly appointed superintendent of the farm will meet in Madison during the week to discuss penal farm business. Whether James L. Randel of this city, a member of the board, may not be able to attend this meeting.

Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, ex-president of the United States, will come here Wednesday, October 28th, and will speak at the court house in the interests of the Republican party. The announcement of the speaking was made by County Chairman Arthur L. Reat Friday afternoon. Mr. Fairbanks will be accompanied here by a number of state candidates and the followers of the G. O. P. expect to have a big rally here that day.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Knauer, one of the county's best known and most highly respected ladies, who died at her home in Madison township Wednesday night, was held at the Bethel church, ten miles northwest of town at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The Rev. U. G. Leazenby, superintendent of the Crawfordsville district of the northwest Indiana conference of the Methodist church, had charge of the services. Interment was in the Baptist cemetery, a short distance from the church.

The Greencastle Encampment, No. 59, of I. O. O. F., will hold its meeting and entertainment Friday evening instead of Friday afternoon as was announced a few days ago. A number of the grand officers of the lodge will be present for the meeting. The Past Grand Master will attend the meeting and the entire membership of the lodge is urged to be present. The degree team will meet Monday evening and every member of the staff is expected to be there for practice.

The condition of Goldie Miller, the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, who reside east of Fillmore, is reported to be very serious. The girl is suffering of typhoid fever and little hope is entertained for her recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Miller are well-known in east Putnam county.

The members of the Filmore Christian church entertained with a reception in the church Friday evening for the new members of the congregation. The 74 people who joined the church during the series of revival services several weeks ago were the guests, and it was estimated that 350 people attended the entertainment. A program of music, both instrumental, a number of readings and a short playlet was given and refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all who were present.

Fred Todd, of Coatesville, was here on business today.

Lonnis Steele, of Roachdale, transacted business here today.

Hiram Storm, of North Salem, was here on business today.

Paul Reule is in Crawfordsville this afternoon to see the Rose Poly-Wabash game.

Dr. and Mrs. C. C. North are attending a meeting of the state board of charities being held at Madison.

Miss Augusta Hankins, of Indianapolis, will spend Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. W. M. McGaughey and family.

Charley Moore, of the Louisville Times, is here for a short visit with his mother.

Alec Frank, an employee of the Greek Candy store, spent Friday in Shelbyville on business.

Mrs. Williams, of Chicago, is here the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. T. Besser, for a few days.

Glen L. Ogle, of Lafayette, state inspector of creameries, visited relatives in Greencastle today.

The members of the Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae club went to Brazil this afternoon, where the club members will be entertained at their regular meeting by Mrs. Robin Stunkard.

Clifford Warner and Worth Toner attended the Indiana-Northwestern football game at Bloomington this afternoon.

Rev. Thomas M. Heaton, of Bloomington, came to Greencastle today to take his mother, Mrs. Heaton, who resided at 407 Hanna street and who suffered a severe stroke of paralysis about two weeks ago, to his home for future residence.

A musically inclined peddler entertained a large crowd of people on the northeast corner of the square this afternoon. He held the attention of the crowd by giving a number of catchy songs, and then sold a line of miscellaneous goods.

The DePauw gymnasium building committee will meet in Greencastle Monday to consider preliminary plans for the construction of the new building. Nothing very definite has been given out concerning the meeting but it is believed that an announcement will be made of the location selected for the building at that time. A full attendance of the lodge is expected. President Hugh Dougherty or the board of trustees, and President Grose, of the university, will meet with the committee.

Bert Rider, a blind lad, who claimed Mt. Vernon as his home and who has been in the city for the past week, attempted to leave town Friday in order to keep from paying a board bill of $5.20 at a local hotel. The boy was apprehended by the manager of the hotel at the interurban station and turned over to the police. The boy who makes his way about the country selling lead pencils, came here the first of the week. His conduct proved him unworthy of little sympathy and the hotel manager was not lenient with him. Policeman Jack Maloney and a number of business men gave the boy enough money to get to Brazil and he left Friday afternoon.

Dick Miller, of Indianapolis, president of the Indiana Democratic club, who has been stumping Putnam county in behalf of the Democratic candidates this week, ended his week's program with an address in the assembly room of the court house, Friday night. Only a fair sized crowd was out to hear Mr. Miller but those who were there heard a logical and honest discussion of the issues of the campaign. Mr. Miller, in his week in Putnam county, has had exceptionally well attended meetings, and has made such an impression that it is probable that in future campaigns he will receive many requests to speak in the county.

Local people who will attend the National Chrysanthemum Show to be held at the German House in Indianapolis November 6-7-8 will be furnished tickets free of charge by the Eitel florists of this city. Mr. Eitel will receive about 125 tickets from the management of the big exhibition and will distribute them to his friends in this city. Each florist subscribing money to promote the display receives tickets which he may dispose of as he pleases. Mr. Eitel has asked all his friends and patrons to come to the office and make application for tickets to the show soon. The local florist in all probability will have a display of flowers at the exhibition. He has raised many beautiful chrysanthemums and believes that he will be able to make a good showing at the national event.

Mrs. Elmer Stratton spent the day in Indianapolis.

Miss Mary Lovett visited in Indianapolis today.

George E. Martin and Douglas Miller, of the DePauw Daily staff, were in Crawfordsville for the Wabash-Rose Poly football game today.

Good eats, good music and fun at Crescent Carnival. Don't forget your pocketbooks.

A. B. HANNA, THE HOUSE FURNISHER

JAMES BUNTEN CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

James B. Bunten, present county commissioner from the second district, late Friday afternoon filed a petition with the county clerk, asking that his name be placed on the county ballots as an independent candidate for commissioner of the second district.

Mr. Bunten, who served four years as deputy sheriff of Putnam county, under his brother, and who served four years as Democratic trustee of Marion county, and who now is serving as county commissioner, was defeated at the recent Democratic primary election for re-nomination by Charley Daggy. Mr. Daggy received only a few more votes than Mr. Bunten.

Mr. Bunten started circulating his petition, asking that he be placed on the county ticket, last Saturday. It is said that Thad Peck, former Republican district chairman, and one of the G. O. P. bosses, wrote the petition. In the six days during which the petition was circulated Mr. Bunten secured 97 signatures.

Mr. Bunten asks that his name be placed under the Independent ticket head and that a star be used as the emblem under which his name appears.

Same Old Bunch.

"It would be a mistake to think that the Republican party can even hope for success on the old standpat lines," said the Indianapolis News not so long ago. "The people seem very well satisfied with what has been done by the Democrats and well they may be," said the editorial utterance in conclusion.

When President Wilson started to expose and drive the unscrupulous lobby from Washington, it developed that the bulk of the work of this lobby was concentrated in Indiana. In the campaign of 1908, that lobby was sent $22,000 into this state to elect Jim Watson. The lobby was shown to be so shameless that even the Indianapolis News was forced to denounce its work.

Today the same men and methods are in absolute control of the Republican state headquarters at the Severin hotel in Indianapolis, spending the money of the interests lavishly to thwart the will of the people.

Look over this array of talent on deck every day at the Severin hotel sending out whole reams of false statements trying to fool the people. Here are a few familiar names: W. T. Durbin, Jim Watson, Jim Hemmaway, Jim Goodrich, Joe Kealing, Charlie Bookwalter, Charlie Fairbanks, Will Hays, J. W. Fesler, Harry New, Will Wood and many of the same sort, including Delavan and Richard Smith of the Indianapolis News.

Susanah Glover was granted a divorce from her husband, Charles Glover on the grounds of abandonment, by Judge Hughes of the Putnam Circuit Court. Her maiden name, Susanah Slayton was restored to her.

Rebekah Notice.

Greencastle Crescent Rebekah lodge No. 763 will meet in regular session Monday evening, Oct. 19, at 7:30 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Claire Gibson, Noble Grand. Olive Brown, Secretary.
